New Attractions at the Post Should Be More Accessible.

short time ago, that Jefferson Barracks is to be made an army post of the first-class. with its full complement of companies and large regimental band, has inspired Lorenzo E. Anderson, manager of the real estate department of the Mercantile Trust Company, with an idea for a great north and south driveway to the Barracks, In speaking of his plan, Mr. Anderson said: "I went down to Jefferson Barracks last Sunday and could not help being struck with the force of the idea. To my mind such a driveway appears to be not only feasible, but almost necessary if we are to keep up with the procession. keep up with the procession

It is as much a part of the summer programme for society in St. Paul to drive out to Fort Snelling to see regimental parade and hear the regimental band, as is attendance on the summer gardens in St. Louis. A beautiful driveway leads from the city to the fort.

"A similar driveway in St. Louis will be an added attraction to the city for the World's Fair. It will be a feature of the city that will impress 'beautiful St. Louis on the minds of visitors, independent of the World's Fair glamour. It will display the charms of our really beautiful Mississippi River scenery in the extreme southern portion of the city, and will be the means of building up many theautiful homes along its course. Nothing so impresses visitors with a city as its boulevards.

"Last Sunday I was very forcibly impressed with the beauties of the route and its vast possibilities for pleasure-giving. St. Louisans do not know what they are letting go to waste. New York has her Riverside Drive. Why should not we?"

"Where would your driveway commence?" Mr. Anderson was asked.

"I would make Grand avenus the northern and central section of the boulevard, running as far south as Carondelet Park. From there it would run east and south until River des Peres was crossed, then east until It might be possible to run south along the bluffs and thence to Jefferson Barracks.

"However, I think by following this or a similar direction the necessity for making great changes in order to boulevard the route would be eliminated, and I am quite sure that the advancement in real estate values along the streets involved would more than repay properly owners for any small portion of the expense which might fall to them."

Australian Proposes to Block City Into Half-Mile Squares.

London, Sept, 7.-London is about to be fed by the mile, or, rather, the half mile. This latest co-operative scheme emanates from the brain of Mr. D. Tallerman of Billiter street, who may be seen in his office from the brain of Mr. D. Tallerman of Billiter street, who may be seen in his office daily locating imaginary kitchens on the map of London.

"I can feed half a million people to-morrow morning," se said, "if they will only open their mouths.

"I am ready to send them their dinners, cooked, at the rate of I shilling per family, I've got London divided up into half-mile squares, and will shortly give an object lesson of what I intend to do for the entire metropolis."

Mr. Tallerman has been working on this scheme for over thirty years. He is spoken of as a food specialist, a ploneer in the Australian meat trade, and the promoter of many philanthropic enterprises which seek to give the masses better things to eat.

"I want you to understand, however," said Mr. Tallerman, "that this shilling dinner idea is not philanthropy. It is the biggest money-making scheme thought of in London for many a long day.

"We have a kitchea down at Millwall Dock 450 feet long. All we're waiting for is patronage. We won't begin operations in any one square until 100 people in that square come and demand dinners, It's always better to let people come to you than for you to go to them."

Mr. Tallerman thinks a trial of the wholesale kitchen will be made in one of the half-mile squares near the Strand. Substations will be established in each square to which food will be sent from the Miliwail Docks kitchen to be distributed throughout the district.
